

VENOMOUS

Luke Kemp

Schlecter's Thicktail (Parabuthus schlecteri)

A large scorpion of around 12 cm in length with the tail extended. Individuals are usually black or dark brown/purple with yellow or white legs, although some individuals don't have lighter legs.

They usually live under rocks and can be found active at night. It is known from the Western and Northern Cape provinces in Karoo and Namaqualand habitats. It is similar in colour to some colour forms of the Granulated Thicktail Scorpion with paler legs.

Stings from this species are painful and may require hospital treatment. Antivenom is not effective against the venom of this species.

Maximum size
12 cm

Luke Kemp