

Harmless

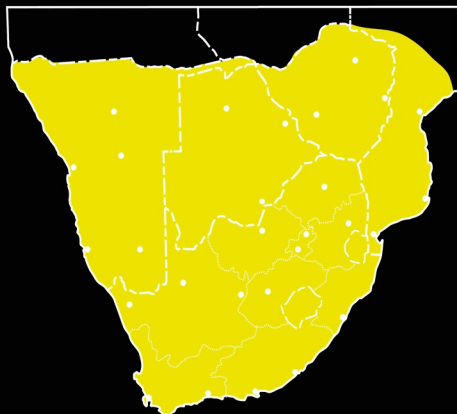

Niela du Preez

Jumping Spider

(Family Salticidae)

Maximum size
5 - 15 mm

These small charismatic spiders are common around human dwellings, in the garden and on walls in and out the house. They are free-living, not building webs and use their excellent vision to hunt flies, mosquitoes and a range of other small insects. They come in a huge variety of colours and sizes but are usually smaller than a pea. They are quite intelligent and you can watch them calculating the distances between objects they want to jump to or insects they are hunting. These spiders can jump about 30cm. They cannot bite people or pets and are great to have around the house to control insects.

Luke Kemp